The only reason that "A Room With a View" is leading the besk book poll is that it's essentially a modern feel-good novel written very well - most of Forster's other works, particularly "Maurice" and "Where Angels Fear To Tread&qu Feb 14th 2001

Reading Forster really is delightful. His novels are romantic and emotional, his knowledge about techniques is amazing but still he's using everything to create a dense emotional atmosphere. Wonderful. A bunch of dumb American students here... Jan 17th 2001

A Room With A View, what an excellent book!!!	Dec 11th 2000 12:10:48 PM
A Room With A View is the most beautiful, inspiring book i have read in years. As a society comedy it rivals even Jane Austen.	Dec 9th 2000 09:00:45 PM
A Room With A View is a great book, at first I had a little trouble understanding it, but as I stuck with it, my understanding of the book progressed and it actually turned out to be a great novel to read. -Akeia	Dec 6th 2000 10:59:09 AM
because i belong to pakistan and have the knowledge of the period which has been depicted in the novel therefore, i think that it is his best novel in which he has done justice to all the communities of sub_continent	Dec 6th 2000 10:52:36 AM

Initially I was disheartened by the apparent shallowness of Lucy, but now studying the novel in greater depth I have come to love her, and Mr Beebe also. I particularly enjoy Forster's use of short derisory sentences: "Lucy was bewildered".	Sep 27th 2000 02:59:48 PM
"A Room with a View" is my favorite book of all times. The story was my first E.M. Forster book and is not the last. I am starting "A Passage to India" and have completed "Howard's End". --Chelsea P. Iowa, USA	Sep 26th 2000 04:13:06 PM

Room is charming and Passage is political, but Howard's End is profound: witty and serious.	Aug 30th 2000 03:57:23 PM
A Passage to India is both a realistic and highly symbolic novel in which many interconnecting themes are explored	Aug 30th 2000 08:17:01 AM
"The final test for a novel will be our affection for it, as it is the test of our friends, and of anything else which we cannot define."--e m forster, though the others are very well written, a room with a view captures my affection	Aug 20th 2000 04:48:23 AM
I feel that the charictor of Cecil in "a room with a view" is Forsters perseption of himself, reclusive and possibly homosexual.	Aug 19th 2000 06:07:54 PM
Cool	Aug 13th 2000 08:51:27 PM

A Passage to India. Full bodied, and all elements of a good story which includes mystery and mythology	Jul 31st 2000 04:33:53 AM
My favourites are RV and M because they are quite straightforward in the views they propound. Still, I wouldn't want to miss any of the other novels. There's so much tenderness and delicacy of feeling in them & a broad scope of thought.	Jul 30th 2000 02:39:34 PM
i like where angels fear to tread because all the quiet and boring characters are the ones who are the heros in the end. it is a great victory for quiet and boring people everywhere!	Jul 24th 2000 11:39:51 PM

among the most charming books I have ever read. funny and smart with characters to remember. the narrator, himself, felt like a character in his 2nd person point of view	Jul 10th 2000 10:06:00 AM
